Spring 2014 Catalogue

Welcome to the new Rondo Publishing Catalogue for 2014

Rondo Publishing is a specialist music publishing company run by string teachers and early music performers with over 60 years' teaching experience on viol, cello and violin. It is hardly surprising therefore that many of our publications have a firm educational bias! Most of the material written by Jacqui Robertson-Wade has been published to encourage new viol players in particular, providing them with resources that form both a good foundation for developing technique and interesting music to play. These publications include both tutor and consort books that provide players with a much needed progressive approach to viol playing.

Other publications include Consorts for Five Book 4, edited by Alison Crum. Tina Chancey (USA) also has a new folk book out for 5 viols, Celtic Gold Book 2.

I've thoroughly enjoyed editing and playing the new editions of J.S. Bach Solo Suite No 1 for bass and tenor viols and the 'Prawns!' book as it is affectionately known: 'Lollipops for Gambas!'

*While there is a lot of free music available online these days, we value the support you are giving to publishers who still provide music which is essential in educational terms. For larger orders please get in contact with us about special postage rates.

The Rondo Viol Academy has now been running courses for four years and those new to viol playing might like to have a look at our web site www.rondoviolaacademy.co.uk.*

J.S. Bach: Sonata in D minor

Arranged by Jan Goorissen and edited by Ibi Aziz, after BWV 526 for Viola da Gamba and Harpsichord.

Review by Mary Pells: The Consort, The Journal of the Dolmetsch Foundation, Summer 2010, Vol 66.: "The whole sonata works well and fits the instrument better than many other transcribed pieces I have performed. The second movement, Largo, is particularly successful. The viol part often lies high in its range, but the editor's suggestions are helpful."

Celtic Gold Book 1 Jackui Robertson-Wade

Review: "The score and parts are admirably clear, with part 4 given in alternative clefs for tenor or bass viol. Slurs marked in the melody (wherever it lies) are in keeping with the folk music tradition, as are the occasional use of pizzicato, chords and 'crushed note' type ornaments. This collection is particularly welcome because it is interestingly different music, but with straightforward diatonic harmony in friendly keys – and it is rare to find consort music for 6 viols of such moderate difficulty." Wendy Hancock.
